Gay Marriage Ban Rejected

Senate's 49-48 vote thwarts conservatives' amendment bid

WASHINGTON | The Senate rejected a constitutional amendment to ban gay marriage by a wide margin Wednesday, delivering a stinging defeat to President Bush and other Republicans who had hoped the issue would rally GOP voters for the November elections.

The senators' vote was 49-48 to limit debate and bring the amendment to a yes-or-no decision. That was 11 short of the 60 needed, killing the measure in the Senate for this year.

President Bush suggested the ban was proper and its time would still come. "Our nation's founders set a high bar for amending our Constitution and history has shown us that it can take several tries before an amendment builds the two-thirds support it needs in both houses of Congress," he said.

Democrats suggested it was all about conservative politics.

"Why is it when Republicans are all for reducing the federal government's impact on people's lives until it comes to these stinging litmus test issues, whether gay marriage or end of life, they suddenly want the federal government to intervene?" asked Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif. "It makes no sense other than throwing red meat to a certain constituency."

Feinstein

The 49 votes to keep the amendment alive were one more than the measure received the last time the Senate voted, in 2004. Proponents had predicted the amendment would get at least a 51-vote majority in the 100-member Senate with the gain of four Republican seats since then. LAURIE KELLMAN (AP)

Hey, a Stray Puppy. Let's Shut It Up

A Muskogee, Okla., woman has filed a complaint against her neighbor, a veterinarian who, without permission, neutered her 10-week-old puppy and surgically quieted his bark. She claims he took the dog from her fenced yard; James Risch, the veterinarian, said he performed the procedures after he found the puppy barking on his porch and thought it was a stray. "He maimed my puppy," Nancy Miller said. "This man is a menace to animals." (AP)

Mounds Could Be Fossils of Earth's Oldest Forms of Life

The best evidence yet for the oldest life on Earth is found in odd-shaped, rock-like mounds in Australia that are actually fossils, researchers report. Scientists theorize that these ancient mounds dotting a large swath of western Australia are not merely dirt piles that formed randomly into odd shapes, but are actually fossils created by microbes 3.4 billion years ago. Bush: Immigrants Must Assimilate

President says foreign arrivals should adopt English, U.S. culture

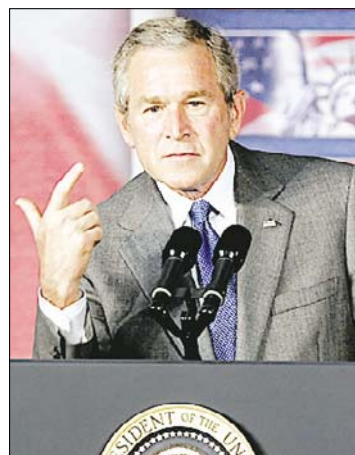

OMAHA, NEB. | New arrivals to this country must adopt American values and learn English, President Bush said Wednesday, pushing anew for his proposal to overhaul immigration rules.

To gain passage during this midterm election year, Bush must win over many in his own party who are opposed to provisions he demands besides stepped-up border enforcement. Those provisions include providing a path to citizenship for many illegal immigrants and allowing additional work permits for foreigners.

The president has taken several tacks in recent weeks to bring around recalcitrant lawmakers, including repeated emphasis on his seriousness about tightening the border with more manpower and equipment and imposing stiffer penalties on businesses that hire illegal immigrants.

On Wednesday, aware that lawmakers are hearing from constituents alarmed by the added burden immigration sometimes places on police, schools and hospitals, Bush touted the importance of assimilation — immigrants' adoption of American culture.

He chose to do so in a heartland state where the rising Hispanic population is creating frustration, and influencing political races.

"One aspect of making sure we have an immigration system that works, that's orderly and fair, is to actively reach out and help people assimilate into our country," Bush said. "That means to learn the values and history and language of America."

Guantanamo Detainee Recounts Koran Clash

Statements contradict military's account of fight involving guards

GUANTANAMO BAY, CUBA | A Guantanamo Bay detainee who participated in a clash with U.S. military guards last month said it was sparked when guards tried to search prisoners' Korans, contradicting the military's account of the melee, his lawyer said Wednesday.

The military, in its account soon after the clash occurred at the prison in southeast Cuba, said 10 prisoners used makeshift weapons to battle 10 guards. It was one of the most violent incidents at Guantanamo Bay, where the U.S. holds about 460 men on suspicion of links to al Qaeda and the Taliban.

The detainee told his defense attorney the guards demanded prisoners turn over their Korans so they could be searched for hoarded medicine, which the military said had been used in two suicide attempts earlier in the day.

One detainee offered to collect the Korans and search them in front of the guards, but the military guards refused and entered the cell block, setting off the fight, he said. (AP)

GOP Gets Narrow Win in Calif. Race

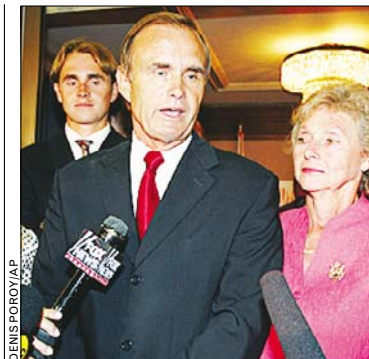

Bilbray's victory eases Republicans' concerns over midterm elections

WASHINGTON | Republicans breathed a $5 million sigh of relief Wednesday at Rep.-elect Brian Bilbray's narrow victory in normally safe San Diego, an election that underscores the challenge facing Democrats even at a time of public dissatisfaction with President Bush.

Then there was the impact on Bush's call for immigration legislation that includes a guest worker program and a shot at citizenship for many of the 11 million in the country unlawfully. It was a minority position by far in San Diego.

The city is hardly a barometer on the issue, given its proximity to the Mexican border. Still, it's hard to see House Republicans, many of whom are already in rebellion on the issue, looking at Bilbray's victory and concluding they should embrace Bush's more compassionate view.

The House race was the one that drew the most national attention, a costly campaign to replace Rep. Randy "Duke" Cunningham, now in jail for bribe taking.

The city is Republican; corruption as well as Bilbray's resume as lawmaker-turned-lobbyist encouraged Democrats to make a play. The result was a race in which the GOP spent more than $4 million, their Democratic counterparts nearly $2 million.

Bilbray's victory left the Democrats' magic number at 15 — the total they must gain in November to regain the majority, and prevented a wave of panic through the GOP ranks that even Republicans conceded was likely if Francine Busby had prevailed. DAVID ESPO (AP)

EU Nations Hit for CIA Collusion

Report: 14 countries part of a 'spider's web' covering up prisons

PARIS | Fourteen European nations colluded with U.S. intelligence in a "spider's web" of human rights abuses to help the CIA spirit terror suspects to illegal detention facilities, a European investigator said Wednesday.

Swiss senator Dick Marty's report to Europe's top human rights body was thin on evidence but raises the possibility of a cover-up involving both friends and critics of Washington's war on terror. It says European governments "did not seem particularly eager to establish" the facts.

The 67-page report, addressed to the 46 Council of Europe member states, will likely be used by the rights watchdog to pressure countries to investigate their suspected role in U.S. rendition flights carrying terror suspects.

In the strongest allegations so far, Marty said evidence suggests planes linked to the CIA carrying terror suspects stopped in Romania and Poland and likely dropped off detainees there, backing up earlier news reports that identified the two countries as possible sites of clandestine detention centers.

The United States did not respond directly to the report, but officials in Romania and Poland vigorously denied the accusations.

"This is slander and it's not based on any facts," Kazimierz Marcinkiewicz, Poland's prime minister, told reporters in Warsaw.

British Prime Minister Tony Blair also denied the collusion allegations and said Marty's report contained no new evidence. "I have to say, the Council of Europe report has absolutely nothing new in it," he told lawmakers. JAN SLIVA (AP)

Iraq Frees 594 Prisoners

Release considered a part of PM's efforts to unify fractured nation

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Hundreds of newly freed Iraqi prisoners kissed the ground after being dropped at bus stations Wednesday as Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki launched the largest such release since the U.S.-led invasion.

Sunni Arab political leaders welcomed the initiative, which was intended to promote reconciliation in this fractured nation. But some expressed fear the releases would be offset by more arrests. There have been accusations that Sunnis have suffered arbitrary detentions and even torture at the hands of the Shiite-led government. "We want a real solution," said Sunni legislator Mohammed al-Dayeni, calling for all detainees to be released.

The government has promised to release a total of 2,000 detainees whose cases have been reviewed, in batches of about 500. The first 594 were freed Wednesday from U.S.- and Iraqi-run prisons around the country, including Abu Ghraib.

Al-Maliki has made security and reconciliation a priority of his new government. But he also has vowed to crack down on violence often blamed on the Sunni-led insurgency, and said the release plan excludes loyalists of ousted leader Saddam Hussein, as well as "terrorists whose hands are stained with the blood of the Iraqi people." Major Concession Offered to Iran

U.S. backs away from demanding prolonged nuclear moratorium

VIENNA, AUSTRIA | In a major concession, world powers are no longer demanding that Iran commit to a prolonged moratorium on uranium enrichment and are now asking only for a suspension during talks on its nuclear program, diplomats and officials said Wednesday.

The proposal and a connected offer to allow continued uranium conversion are part of an effort to avoid a showdown over international concerns that the Iranians are trying to develop nuclear weapons.

Backing off the previous stance on enrichment signals a possible readiness by the United States and key allies to accept some limited form of enrichment by Iran, despite years of warnings from Washington that Tehran wanted such technology to make atomic warheads.

Iran insists its nuclear program is intended only to produce power, arguing it needs enrichment technology to produce fuel for atomic reactors that would generate electricity.

European Union foreign policy chief Javier Solana, who presented the offer to Iranian officials this week, said Wednesday that the issue of enrichment would have to be reassessed once talks were completed.

"In principle ... they will have to stop now, we will have to negotiate with no process of enrichment in place," he told reporters in Germany. "After the finalization of the negotiations we will see what happens."

Big Science Find: Dwarf Dinosaurs

The fossils of smaller species are discovered in northern Germany

NEW YORK | Dwarf dinosaurs? It sounds like the old George Carlin joke about jumbo shrimp: two words that just don't go together.

But fossils from northern Germany have revealed a dinosaur that evolved into a dwarf, ending up only about one-third the size of its closest known relatives, scientists report.

The four-legged plant-eater was no lap dog: It measured about 20 feet from its snout to the tip of its long tail and it weighed about a ton.

But next to its close evolutionary cousin Camarasaurus, a well-known beast that stretched some 59 feet long, this guy was a runt.

What happened? The researchers say it's a case of island dwarfism, the tendency of big species to shrink over time when they find themselves on an island. It's well-known among mammals, as with fossil elephants only about 3 feet tall found in Sicily and elsewhere.

The creature, dubbed Europasaurus holgeri, lived 154 million years ago near what is now the German town of Goslar.

Scientists think that in an environment of limited resources, smaller body size becomes an advantage, and so captive populations shrink in body size over long periods of time.

The new creature is the best documented case of island dwarfism among dinosaurs, said P. Martin Sander, a paleontologist at the University of Bonn in Germany and lead author of a report in Thursday's issue of the journal Nature.

Sander got his first look at the fossils in 2003 after an amateur bone-hunter found them in a quarry. Sander and other scientists initially thought they were from juvenile animals, but details of the bone structure showed they came from adults. (AP)

A Training Program For Everyone

Our six-month training programs are geared to both beginners and experienced runners. The full marathon program starts with three miles of running and walking, and then gradually increases in distance. The half marathon program starts with just one mile. Many of our participants are first-time marathoners. Some have never run a step in their lives. But 98% of those who complete the program complete the marathon.

Each weekend, you'll train with your "pace group" – other runners who share your same level of conditioning, whether fast or slow. It's a great way to get fit, have fun, and make a tremendous difference in the fight to end AIDS. It may be the best thing you do this year, and your life will never be the same.

There are four group run sites located throughout the Washington area each weekend. Choose the location most convenient for you.

Guided Fundraising

AIDS is now the leading cause of death worldwide among all people ages 15 to 59. Here in Washington, DC, the rate of new AIDS cases is ten times the national average. The money you raise will allow Whitman-Walker Clinic to provide direct medical care, food, and other vital AIDS services – to keep people alive until there's a cure.

In the past eight years, we've helped 20,000 people nationwide raise more than $65 million to support people living with HIV/AIDS. We'll be there to help you every step of the way. You'll be surprised at how willing people are to support you. All you have to do is ask.

Hamas to Limit Militia in Gaza Strip

As deadline looms on Israel vote, a deal to ease tensions is reached

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | The Hamas-led government agreed Wednesday to withdraw its private militia from public areas of Gaza in an agreement with the rival Fatah movement aimed at halting weeks of bloody infighting.

The deal, mediated by Egyptian diplomats, came amid a deeper disagreement over an ultimatum by President Mahmoud Abbas to recognize Israel or face a referendum on the idea. Abbas, who heads Fatah, has given the Islamic group until the weekend to respond.

The black-clad Hamas militia has been at the center of a brewing power struggle. Hamas deployed the 3,000-member force last month throughout Gaza, sparking violence that has claimed 16 lives.

"They are going to be in places away from the public. They are not going to be visible to people," government spokesman Ghazi Hamad said after Wednesday's meeting. Under the arrangement, the militia is to be folded into the official Palestinian police force, he said.

Hamas paramilitaries prepare to be repositioned and posted away from the view of Palestinians in a bid to reduce tensions.

Senior officials from both sides, including Prime Minister Ismail Haniyeh of Hamas, joined the day-long talks. "We agreed on practical steps to guarantee the end of the bloodshed in Palestinian streets," Hamad said. IBRAHIM BARZAK (AP)

U.N.'s No. 2 Takes Jab At the U.S.

UNITED NATIONS | The United Nations' No. 2 official accused the U.S. government of keeping Middle America in the dark about the world body's good works, a rare direct criticism that drew an angry response Wednesday from Ambassador John Bolton.

Bolton called Tuesday's speech by Deputy Secretary-General Mark Malloch Brown a "very, very grave mistake" that could undermine Secretary-General Kofi Annan's efforts to push through an ambitious agenda at the world body.

In the speech, Malloch Brown said the United States relies on the United Nations as a diplomatic tool but doesn't defend it against criticism at home, a policy of "stealth diplomacy" that he called unsustainable.

"The U.N.'s role is in effect a secret in Middle America even as it is highlighted in the Middle East and other parts of the world," he said. (AP)

Stocks Continue Week-Long Drop

Dow Jones falls below 11,000 for the first time since early March

NEW YORK | Stocks dropped Wednesday, extending investors' losses for the third straight session and pushing the Dow Jones industrial average below 11,000 for the first time since March 9.

The Dow has lost more than 316 points this week; the selloff has also wiped out the Nasdaq composite index's gains for the year and put the Standard & Poor's 500 index less than 8 points away from its Dec. 31 close.

With little economic data or corporate news to move stocks, traders were left to decide whether the week's tumble was a buying opportunity or a harbinger of worse days ahead. Stocks spent most the day higher, but the advance-decline line was narrow and the market turned negative in late afternoon.

Volume was light, as it has been all week, which some investors say is a sign of more losses to come.

"When we have big down days on big volume, that's a sign of capitulation," said Chris Johnson, manager of quantitative analysis at Schaeffer's Investment Research in Cincinnati. "Monday and Tuesday, we saw selling, but it wasn't the type of volume we like to see for short term-buying opportunities. ... All the sellers aren't out of this market yet." ELLEN SIMON (AP)

Wedding Pics: Pay Per View

National Park Service starts charging to take shots at monuments

WASHINGTON | Wedding parties and other groups hoping to commemorate their special event with a photograph at the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument or other popular landmark on National Park Service land will have to pay for a permit.

Under a new policy that began May 15, the Park Service is charging $50 to $250 to groups that hire commercial photographers to snap pictures at some of the 390 monuments, parks and historic sites it oversees. The cost depends on the size of the group.

The fees are being charged at some of the busiest Park Service sites in the Washington area and at the Grand Canyon in Arizona. Other heavily used sites include the Statue of Liberty, Alaska's Denali National Park and Preserve, Big Bend National Park in Texas, and Yellowstone National Park in Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

Officials said the fees are in response to a 2000 federal law that requires various agencies to come up with ways to recoup the costs of maintenance, security and other expenses stemming from commercial filming and photography on federal land. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Police Chief's Son Attacked on Mall

WASHINGTON | The son of the acting U.S. Capitol Police chief was assaulted last week on what usually is a quiet spot on Capitol Hill, following a series of attacks on the National Mall, police said Wednesday.

Bryan C. McGaffin, the son of Acting Police Chief Christopher McGaffin, was attacked June 1 in Lower Senate Park in broad daylight, according to a police report. The 24-year-old was struck and pushed to the ground. He lost his BlackBerry device in the struggle.

Police said a group of juveniles was suspected in the assault, and investigators were trying to determine whether the same group was responsible for the Mall attacks.

There were three attacks in May on the Mall, in which two people were beaten and a girl was sexually assaulted, that Capitol Police are investigating with Park Police. (AP)

Rabid Cat Halts Area Adoptions

Kitten brought home from PetSmart is put down after infection

GREENBELT, MD. | PetSmart has suspended animal adoptions at 22 stores in Maryland and Virginia because a kitten in one of its stores tested positive for rabies.

The kitten was part of a litter of six from the Greenbelt store. All six animals have been euthanized, said Cindy Sharpley, director of Last Chance Animal Rescue, the organization that supplied the kittens.

She said the store learned the kitten was infected after its owner asked to return the animal because it was lurching and unsteady.

John Marsiglia, manager of the Greenbelt PetSmart, said the kittens were in the store May 14 to 19.

"It is a tragic incident, and there was nothing that anyone could have done to prevent this from happening," Sharpley said. (AP)

Brave New World in Finals

Familiar faces are on teams unfamiliar with NBA championships

NBA FINALS | Never mind that the Miami Heat and the Dallas Mavericks are NBA finals neophytes.

When the series opens on Thursday, even folks who don't follow basketball will recognize plenty of primary characters — the enormous center with the huge smile, the coach with the snazzy suit and slicked-back hair, even the rich guy in a Mavericks T-shirt and jeans usually seen yelling at the officials.

The names Shaquille O'Neal and Pat Riley certainly aren't new to the NBA's championship series. Riley, who retooled Miami's roster as general manager before installing himself as coach this season, seems to be selling his message to the Heat players.

"I think he knows this is what you play for, this moment right here," O'Neal said on Wednesday.

The Dallas Mavericks have waited 26 years to reach the finals since their inception. To everyone in Dallas, it was worth the wait.

"It's amazing," said Mark Cuban,

When the Mavericks made the NBA finals, owner Mark Cuban, left, was all screams.

the outspoken Internet billionaire owner of the Mavericks. "It means a lot to me, but it means that much more to the guys and the city."

The casually dressed Cuban is sure to get plenty of TV air time during this series for his passionate cheering and referee-baiting.

Will he be on his best behavior for the finals?

"Yeah," he said, laughing. "I'm going to be wearing a suit and I'm going to have some masking tape over my mouth, too." JAIME ARON (AP)

Titans Agree to Send McNair to Baltimore

QB to get $11 million bonus from Ravens if he passes a physical

RAVENS | The Tennessee Titans ended their stalemate with quarterback Steve McNair on Wednesday and traded the former MVP to the Baltimore Ravens pending a physical.

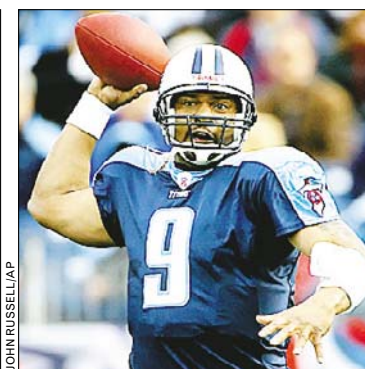

"We have granted permission to Baltimore to give Steve McNair a physical, which we expect to take place in the next 24 hours," the team said in a statement.

"Upon passing a physical, final trade terms will be agreed upon."

The Ravens confirmed that McNair was scheduled to take a physical Wednesday, but the team said the results were not expected to be available until Thursday morning.

McNair, who turned 33 in February, was the winningest quarterback in franchise history. In 11 seasons, he went 81-59 and led them to their only Super Bowl in 2000. He and Peyton Manning shared the league's MVP award in 2003.

McNair won a grievance last week that allowed him to return to the team's headquarters and work out after being told he couldn't on April 3. The Titans had been trying to renegotiate a cheaper salary for McNair to lower a $23.46 million salary cap hit.

But the Titans had given McNair's agent, Bus Cook, permission to talk with Baltimore on April 30 about a contract, and Cook worked out a five-year deal with an $11 million signing bonus and $1 million salary for 2006.

That was much more than McNair could get from the Titans, who had drafted quarterback Vince Young of Texas with the third overall pick in April. TERESA M. WALKER (AP)

ORIOLES PITCHER ERIK BEDARD

Off the Field

Q&A | Every time Erik Bedard finds his groove, something goes wrong. The Orioles' southpaw had a strong start in 2005, going 5-1 with a 2.08 ERA in his first nine starts of the season. But a left knee injury (sprained medial collateral ligament) forced him to shut it down for eight weeks. Bedard came back in mid-July, but couldn't find his form, going 1-6 down the stretch. Bedard (5-5) started 2006 by going 4-1, but has lost three of his last four outings.

You had such a great start to 2005, missed two months with an injury and then had a rough second half. What was that like?

Orioles lefty Erik Bedard looked strong early but has lost three of his last four starts.

I guess it was frustrating because I was on a roll. ... I came back, but it was hard. I didn't finish the season like I wanted to.

What's your favorite place to play

"It was frustrating because I was on a roll. I came back, but it was hard."

besides Camden Yards?

For the atmosphere? Boston, even though I don't do good there. There's the fans, there's history and there's the Green Monster and it's kind of old. You always feel like there's more history than any other ballpark.

What do you like to do when you're not playing?

Golf and fish. We played a lot [of golf] in spring training around Fort Lauderdale. I've been playing for a while. I really got good when I was in my Tommy John rehab.

What's your handicap?

If I play consistently, maybe 10 or 12. If I would play all the time? I broke 70 in spring training. Right now, you really don't have time. You wake up early, then you come to the field [and play] and you don't want to work out anymore because you're tired.

What do you see yourself doing when you're out of baseball?

I don't know. I like to play golf. I'd like to play golf every day and see where I can go with that.

So you can keep doing something competitive?

Yeah ... but not really. When I play [right now], I play for fun most of the time. When I do [poorly] it doesn't matter. ERIC BRANDNER

Howard Quickly Learns the Ropes

Phillies first baseman was thrown in the fire last year ... and thrived

NATIONALS | He's a quick learner.

Philadelphia first baseman Ryan Howard made a thunderous debut in the second half of 2005, belting 22 home runs and walking away with the National League Rookie of the Year Award.

The lumbering lefty's superlative second half helped ease the disappointment of losing 2003 signee Jim Thome, who clubbed 89 homers in his first two seasons in Philadelphia before suffering an injury-filled 2005.

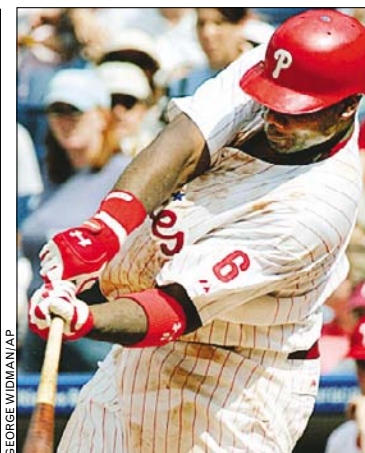

While Thome (AL-best 20 homers through Tuesday) has found new life with the reigning World Series champs in Chicago, Howard is already closing in on last year's long-ball total.

His sophomore campaign has been bolstered by his ability to hit left-handed pitching. He was hitting .303 against southpaws entering yesterday's series finale at Arizona, a significant improvement from his .148 rookie performance against lefties.

"He's staying on the ball a bit better," Phillies manager Charlie Manuel recently told MLB.com. "It's all about taking what they give him and he's been doing that, and not trying to do too much. He's got so much strength that he can put it out [to the opposite field]."

More than half of Howard's homers this season have been hit the other way.

One of those blasts was a three-

Ryan Howard, last year's NL Rookie of the Year, has been even better this year.

run homer against Nationals reliever Gary Majewski on May 29 that opened the floodgates for an 11-2 Phillies victory.

It was one of Howard's two game-deciding hits against the Nationals this season — he also hit an RBI single in the bottom of the 10th to give Philadelphia a 7-6 win on April 20.

Though the young power hitter has six homers in 68 career at bats against Washington, his big cuts don't always meet the ball. Howard has struck out 22 times against Nationals pitchers in his short career.

After whiffing 100 times in 312 at bats last season, he's on pace to strike out more than 160 times in 2006, a troubling number for any player, even one with a near-.300 career average.

Then again, maybe that's the next bad habit Howard will set out to break. He is a quick learner.

Nadal gets easy win; top seeds in semis for first time in 20 years

TENNIS | Hopping in place in a hall-way leading to the court, Rafael Nadal was drenched with sweat before he smacked a ball in his French Open quarterfinal.

A study in perpetual motion, Nadal actually got a bit of a breather Wednesday, when Novak Djokovic of Serbia-Montenegro quit with a back injury after losing the first two sets.

"The fact that today's match was, I wouldn't say 'comfortable,' but low-intensity, is going to help Rafael," said Nadal's coach and uncle, Toni. "It's great to compensate for the long matches he's had."

That's hardly good news for Nadal's next opponent, Ivan Ljubicic, who beat Julien Benneteau of France 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 to reach his first semifinal in 27 trips to Grand Slam tournaments.

With No. 2 Nadal facing No. 4

Rafael Nadal advanced to the semifinals, where he will face Ivan Ljubicic on Friday.

Ljubicic, and No. 1 Roger Federer playing No. 3 Diego Nalbandian on Friday, it's the first time since 1985 that the men seeded 1-4 at the French Open all made the semifinals.

"I don't think there's any doubt that (Nadal) is a big favorite. Of the four of us left, he is definitely the favored one," said Ljubicic, who hasn't yet faced a seeded player.

The women's semifinals Thursday are 2003 and 2005 French Open champion Justine Henin-Hardenne vs. reigning U.S. Open champion Kim Clijsters, and 2004 U.S. Open champion Svetlana Kuznetsova vs. 17-year-old Nicole Pietrangeli. HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

Rooney Cleared to Rejoin Cup Team

England must decide by Friday if striker will make the roster or not

WORLD CUP | England striker Wayne Rooney was cleared to rejoin his country's World Cup squad after having his broken right foot examined, FIFA's Web site reported Wednesday.

Rooney boarded a flight to return to Germany on Wednesday evening after having scans on the foot, which he broke on April 29.

There was no official confirmation from either the English Football Association or his club, Manchester United, about the results of the scans on his metatarsal bone which took place at an exclusive hospital. But the 20-year-old striker was all smiles as he left the hospital, the British Press Association reported.

Rooney was accompanied by England team doctor Leif Sward and Football Association executive director David Davies.

A handful of fans chanted Rooney's name and "England! England!" as his silver van was driven through the hospital gates.

Manchester United team doctor Tony Gill and physiotherapist Rob Swire were scheduled to join Rooney at the hospital.

polo shirt and sweat pants, left the hospital 15 minutes later after the scan. Without making any comment, he got into a silver Mercedes and was driven to an undisclosed location to await test results.

England has until Friday to determine if Rooney should stay on the squad or be replaced by Jermain Defoe.

It is not known when — or if — Rooney will return to England's World Cup base near Baden-Baden, a spa town in southern Germany. The results of the scan may not be known until Thursday. (AP)

Bluegrass Cat's the Belmont Favorite

Derby runner-up gets nod at 3-1 in race sans Barbaro, Bernardini

HORSE RACING | Kentucky Derby runner-up Bluegrass Cat was made the favorite for Saturday's $1 million Belmont Stakes, which drew a field of 12 3-year-olds.

Without Derby winner Barbaro and Preakness winner Bernardini in the race, New York Racing Association oddsmaker Eric Donovan went with trainer Todd Pletcher's colt as the 3-1 morning-line choice on Wednesday for the final leg of the U.S. Triple Crown.

Pletcher, looking for his first win in a U.S. Triple Crown race, also has the second favorite in Sunriver. Winner of the Peter Pan Stakes at Belmont Park on May 20, Sunriver was 4-1. Steppenwolf, the third-place Derby finisher, was 9-2.

Bluegrass Cat, who finished 6½ lengths behind Barbaro in the Derby, will leave from the No. 9 post in the 1½-mile race. The colt will be ridden by John Velazquez, who has been sidelined since April 20 with shoulder and rib injuries.

The rest of the field includes Wood Memorial winner Bob and John (5-1), followed by Jazil (10-1), High Finance (12-1), Deputy Glitters, Hemingway's Key and Sacred Light (all at 15-1), Oh So Awesome (20-1) and Double Galore and Platinum Couple (both 30-1). (AP)

Research Study Trying to Improve Depressive Symptoms Quickly

Several medications are effective for treating depression; however, they take weeks or months to achieve their full effects. NIMH is studying whether a drug can cause a rapid antidepressant effect in patients with bipolar or unipolar depression. The study also tries to see if it can sustain the results with another medication in certain patients. Understanding how this works may help us understand depression and design better antidepressants. NIMH is seeking people ages 18-65 with depression (unipolar or bipolar) who are:

- Free of other serious medical conditions
- Willing to participate in a minimum of a 12-day inpatient stay

NO ONE LIVES FOREVER, EVEN ON TV: As Denny Duquette, Jeffrey Dean Morgan was a heart patient with a soul, even charming (and proposing to) his doctor.

It's Only a TV Series

True, but one death on 'Grey's Anatomy' hit
the show's fans hard

TRANSITIONS | Jeffrey Dean Morgan hoped, prayed, schemed and finally begged for life. At one point, he marched into show-runner Shonda Rhimes' office and pleaded: "Please, please, just let me live."

Rhimes was sympathetic but firm, and on the season finale of "Grey's Anatomy," Morgan's beloved character, Denny Duquette, survived a difficult heart transplant, asked Izzie to marry him and then, in the last few minutes of the show, had a stroke. While no one was watching, save the 19.9 million viewers sobbing in their homes, Denny quietly breathed his last.

"It was a grim day, let me tell you," Morgan said. "It broke my heart to leave that show."

The show, which follows the exploits of a group of Seattle surgeons-in-training, including Izzie and main character Meredith Grey, is one of the biggest hits on television. It has a devoted following, many of whom were apparently holding out hope that Denny would somehow pull through.

After working as an actor for more than 15 years, after having guest appearances on "pretty much every TV show you can think of," Morgan has suddenly found himself a posthumous celebrity. Weeping women approach him in the supermarket, long-lost friends are falling out of the woodwork and, most important, producers and directors who wouldn't have given him the time of day a year ago are suddenly on the phone.

"It's very weird," he said, shaking his head with another one of those heartwarming grins "Grey's" fans would recognize at once.

Money Changers

NBC's 'Windfall' rains pennies from heaven on an eclectic cast

DEBUT | The summer series “Windfall” (10 p.m., NBC) asks viewers to care about the fates of 20 photogenic folks who share ownership of a $400 million sweepstake ticket. As you can imagine, we get to see people say, “yippee,” more than once, and with so many personal sagas to introduce, there isn't much time to spare.

The group of lucky 20 includes two married couples (Luke Perry, Lana Parilla, Jason Gedrick and FREE MONEY: Only pretty people can inherit shares of the “Windfall” lottery.

Sarah Wynter) who share some past romantic entanglements. Will former lovers reunite now that money is no object? A handsome florist (D.J. Cotrona) with a felonious past fears that publicity may attract attention and danger. A single mom checks out of her trailer-park lifestyle only to discover that her son has become a victim of bullies. A surly teen stuns his father with an exotic act of defiance, and an idealistic nurse becomes an instant philanthropist.

“Windfall” seems to be caught between two clichés: “money changes everything” and “money isn't everything.” With “My Name is Earl,” NBC already has one show about a lottery winner. They should have quit while they were ahead. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

How to Build a Profit-packed Stock Portfolio in 5 Minutes a Day

Creator of one of the world's most popular investment tools explains how almost any investor can follow the proven path to price gains in thousands of stocks

By Dean Jordan

Wizetrade™ is a unique and powerful desktop tool that helps investors identify stocks with solid momentum. It may be the best thing to come out of Texas since oil.

George Thompson, the creator of Wizetrade™, is bringing his free Wizetrade™ preview workshop to our area next week, and we took this opportunity to ask George what makes Wizetrade™ and his free workshop so popular.

Q: George, you've been called "the investor's Thomas Edison." How did that start?

George: I think it's because Edison patented the ticker tape, making it possible for investors almost anywhere to follow stock prices without being on the exchange floor. It was liberating. A true turning point.

And now, Wizetrade™ makes it possible to go beyond price information and pinpoint moneymaking trends as they're happening. Like the ticker tape, it's a revolutionary empowerment.

Q: Exactly how does Wizetrade™ empower investors?

George: The golden rule to savvy investing is, "Buy low. Sell high." But of course, you can never know exactly when that is. So I tweaked the golden rule. To make money you must... Buy when the price trend turns up. Sell when the price trend turns down. And with Wizetrade™, you know when this turning point happens. In short, Wizetrade™ helps you follow the new golden rule to making money in stocks.

Q: How does Wizetrade™ identify a killer trend in the making?

George: By measuring the buying and selling pressure exerted on a stock as investors seek to either get in or out of a position.

Wizetrade™ shows you the price trend as it forms, live in the market. When you follow the buying and selling pressure exerted on a stock, you can have a strategy to ride the surges and avoid the declines. And that's what successful investing is all about. It's how thousands of investors make money in the market.

Q: Can you give me an example?

George: Absolutely. Gildan Activewear was trading at $13.82 when Wizetrade™ turned green, and was still green at $45.44 — giving investors a 228% gain.

Tim Participacoes SA was trading at $15.98 when Wizetrade™ turned green. It was still green at $35.20 for a 120% return. I can give you examples until the ice caps melt.

Q: What do you mean by "Wizetrade™ turned green"?

George: Wizetrade™ is really easy to use. Your computer screen will have lights that represent time intervals like long-term and short-term. When the lights are green, buying pressure has set a stock's price in an uptrend for that time period. A red light means the stock is in a downtrend.

Q: Making money can be that simple?

George: Yes. One of our youngest Wizetraders™, Christian Powers, produced a 355% return in his portfolio when he was just 12 years old. He followed the Wizetrade™ lights — and he produced greener returns than most mutual fund managers. Of course, children should have adult supervision.

Q: How much time does it take to use Wizetrade™?

George: Only a few minutes. You can literally turn a coffee break into dollars. Keep it simple. Keep it profitable. That's the objective of using Wizetrade™. At the free workshop, you'll see how easy it can be to use.

Q: At the workshop, will investors be able to see what Wizetrade™ has to reveal about stocks they own?

George: Absolutely. You'll see if the Wizetrade™ lights are green or red. I've had countless people say, "George, your workshop saved my portfolio." They had no idea their stocks were locked in a downtrend with not enough buying pressure to reverse it.

Q: What else could the workshop reveal?

George: You may discover this year's breakout stock. In the 30 months following our mention of Immucor at a workshop, it rose 1,750%.

Q: How is it possible to make money in any market, up or down?

George: No matter what the general market is doing, some stocks will rise — and they'll rise faster than the market. Wizetrade™ helps you find stocks that are creating their own upward trend. Wizetrade™ is all about having a solid investment strategy — plus the tool to keep your strategy firmly in place.

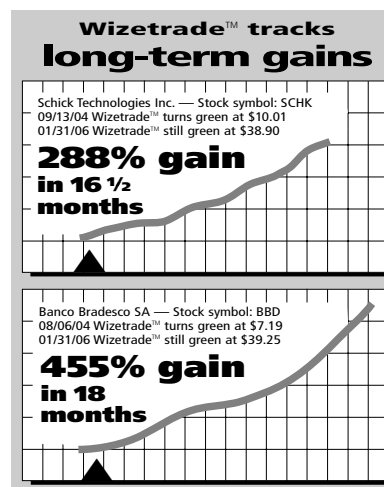

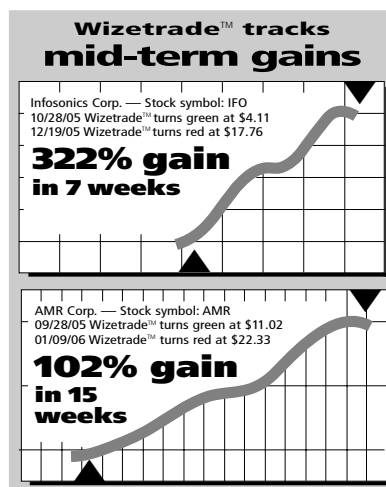

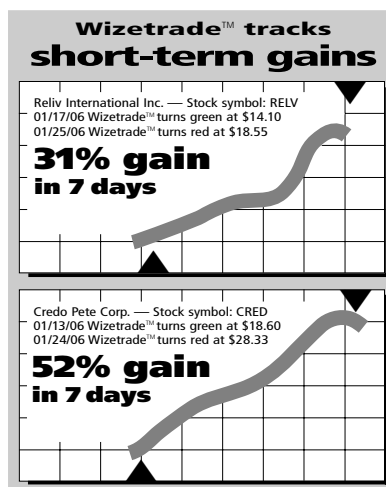

GEORGE THOMPSON

"The workshop can be a great place to discover stocks with strong trend lines. In the 30 months following our mention of Immucor, it rose 1,750 percent."

"When the Wizetrade™ lights turn green on a stock, the price trend is rising. For investors who want to follow an uptrend, investing can be that simple."

"I've had countless people say, 'George, your workshop saved my portfolio.' They had no idea their stocks were locked in a downtrend with no buying pressure to reverse it."

— George Thompson, President, Wizetrade, LP

Graphs shown are artist renderings and not depictions of actual Wizetrade™ charts.

"I was up $5,000 in two days." — Neil Friess, Florida

"My best trade so far has been around $10,000 in one day." — Jim Sielecki, Ohio

Q: What is the secret to great returns?

George: Follow the trend. It's truly the yellow brick road for investors.

Q: What makes a truly great stock?

George: A truly great trend. Knowing how powerful the price trend is... that's the secret to great investing. And Wizetrade™ measures the strength of the trend.

Q: What about the fundamentals?

George: Fundamentals like P/E ratio — even solid buy recommendations from stock analysts — do not determine a stock's price. This information can trap investors into holding a stock as the price falls. The Wizetrade™ lights turned red on Enron when insiders and stock analysts were still saying it was a "buy."

Q: George, why do you offer the free workshop?

George: People can see Wizetrade™ work its magic live. Mention any stock you own or are even thinking of buying, and we'll run it through Wizetrade™. In about three seconds you'll know if it's a winner or a loser. Wizetrade™ can help anybody who has a goal of making serious money in stocks, and the workshop lets you go for a test-drive.

Q: Who should attend the free workshop?

George: To start, baby boomers who need money to retire. And members of Generation X who missed the great Wall Street bull market of the 1990s.

But really, Wizetrade™ empowers all investors. Just ask yourself if you want to make money. If your answer is "yes," come to the workshop. It's free.

Judson Laipply gets his 15 minutes with 'Evolution of Dance'

Judson Laipply isn't afraid to bust a move.

Laipply, a 30-year-old comedian and motivational speaker from Cleveland, is — as he puts it — that Guy at the wedding “out there dancing with everybody and having fun.”

Now, he's cutting a rug as the It Boy of the Internet.

Laipply's video clip, “Evolution of Dance,” taped at one of his speaking engagements, has been viewed more than 18 million times on the video Web site YouTube since April. In the clip, his combination of a nerdy-guy persona and his hot dance steps — he covers everything from Elvis's 1950's hip-bopping to today's flashy hip-hop moves — makes for a hilarious six minutes.

As a self-described “inspirational comedian,” Laipply blends motivational speaking with comedy to “No. 1, make them laugh; No. 2, make them think.” Four years ago, he began closing many of his appearances at colleges, high schools and corporations with the unusual dance medley, which became a crowd favorite.

“I sat down one day and mixed some music, and came up” with the original version of the dance, he told The Associated Press in a recent interview. “I went out and did it once, and it went over really well, and I thought, ‘This is hilarious.’”

After friends asked him to post a clip of it onto his Myspace.com page, Laipply obliged, also uploading it onto YouTube.com, which allows users to post videos for sharing. It now holds the record as that site's most-viewed video ever. In the video, Laipply — sporting a bright “Orange Crush” T-shirt tucked into blue jeans — gyrates to Elvis' “Hound Dog,” dusts off the stiff-limbed robot routine for Styx's “Mr. Roboto” and shimmies to MC Hammer's “U Can't Touch This.” He shakes his rump to Sir Mix-A-Lot's “Baby Got Back” and snakes his neck to the Bangles' “Walk Like an Egyptian.”

For now, he's enjoying all the adulation, but said he has “zero expectations” for his career and doesn't count on overnight becoming a celebrity speaker — say, like self-help guru Tony Robbins.

“Anything that comes out of this to me is a bonus, and I will appreciate it and take it for all that's it's worth,” he said. “I'm not saying I won't try to use it to my advantage, but I don't have the expectation that I'm going to turn it into something else.”

He is, however, working on a new video, “Evolution of Dance Revisited,” which he plans to release in the next few months.

“The Hustle will be in there, the Cha-Cha Slide, the Electric Slide, perhaps a few more (music-video) dances like, ‘Hey Mickey,’ ‘Maniac’ or Men Without Hats’ [The] Safety Dance,” he said.

Laipply's schtick not only has attracted a cross-generational audience, it has reconnected him with buddies from his past.

“The neatest thing is that a lot of long-lost friends have appeared because they're watching this video, and they're going, ‘Oh my god, this is Jud! I went to high school with him!’” ERIN CARLSON (AP)

Powell's stays true to independent roots in battle with big chains

Powell's Books' flagship store in Portland, Ore., is so large, visitors get a map at the door. Not that some people would ever want to find their way back out.

Visitors wander through the warehouse-sized store, which sprawls across an entire city block. They loll in a room dedicated to the arts, wander a few aisles on metaphysics and browse shelves of nautical fiction.

Powell's is one of the nation's largest independent booksellers, offering 4.5 million new, used, rare and out-of-print books. It competes with the likes of Barnes & Noble, Borders and Amazon.com. But unlike many of its independent bookstore brethren, Powell's survives and thrives.

"Powell's is viewed as one of

"It's not enough to love books. You have to love the business of it."

MICHAEL POWELL

the pre-eminent bookshops in the world," said Mitchell Kaplan, president of the American Booksellers Association. "No one has done it the way Powell's has done it."

And no one but a Powell will continue to do it. Founder Michael Powell, 65, recently announced he is handing the business over to his 27-year-old daughter Emily — renewing the commitment to keep Powell's an independent, family-run endeavor.

The challenge for the bookstore's second generation, industry experts say, is to continue the innovation that made it a quirky leader among corporate competitors.

Michael Powell was a graduate student in Chicago when he started his first bookstore in 1970, with the encouragement of friends and professors, including novelist Saul Bellow.

His father started the Portland store after visiting his son for the summer. When Michael joined his father in 1979, he moved the business to a larger location. And he decided to sell new and used books on the same shelf — an unheard of move that paid off.

Powell's grew from one store to six, expanded its main store and launched an online business in 1994, just before Amazon.com. Online sales now make up about one-third of the company's revenue. "It's not enough to love books," Michael Powell said. "You have to love the business of it."

In recent years, used books have been a fast-growing segment of the bookselling business, according to a study by Book Industry Study Group. InfoTrends estimates that total used-book revenue exceeded $2.2 billion in 2004 and 111 million used books were sold, an increase of 11 percent from 2003.

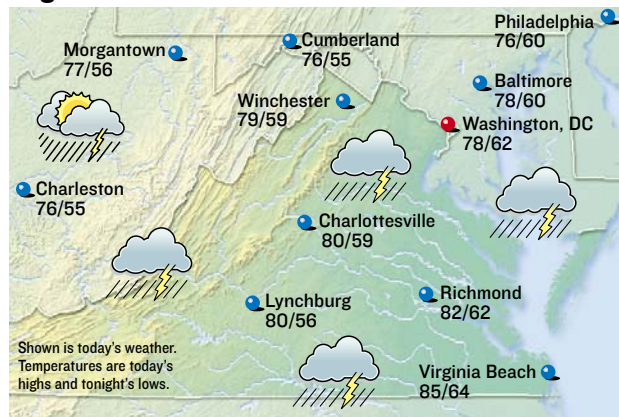

Powell's has staff who scour the globe for the best used books and even go on road tours to hold weekend used-book buying events around the country. The result is an inventory that could provide a book to each of the Portland area's 2 million or so residents and still have 60 percent of its stock.

"The conflict is that inventory for the longest time has been dictated by a store's size," Emily Powell said. "You walk into a Borders or a Barnes & Noble ... what is there is what you get. ... You and I were led to believe our tastes needed to fit within that realm as well." SARAH SKIDMORE

REPORT

De la Renta shows his sailing style

It's not every designer who could get fashion's finest to leave their offices on the afternoon of the CFDA Awards — the industry's version of the Academy Awards, and one of the busiest days of the year for most editors and buyers — but when that designer is Oscar de la Renta, the faithful come when summoned. And at the Morgan Library and Museum in midtown Manhattan on the afternoon of Monday, June 5th, the faithful were rewarded with an elegant, easy-to-wear collection that hewed to the youthful side of grown-up glamour.

Beneath the modern, soaring glass atrium of the Morgan Library amid spot lit trees, came looks designed to take one from the beach (a white crocheted bikini worn with sombrero-sized straw hat or a décolletage-baring lace caftan) to the beach club (a simple navy sundress or brown linen sheath with turquoise blue embellishments) to beyond (a lovely rolled-sleeve trench, cotton print suits, ruffled silk chiffon dresses and gowns that would look just right on the dance floor in the South of France or South Hampton).

Dresses, which made up of the bulk of Mr. de la Renta's resort collection, were cut very close to the torso and puffed out like stiff tulips below the waist or hung straight from the shoulders, their hip pockets imparting a sense of nonchalance that played nicely against the couture-worthy craftsmanship. The designer's signature Ikat prints were splashed on sundresses, oversized handbags and platform sandals, and polka dots and watercolor-like florals played across more than one flirty frock.

FASHION WIRE DAILY

Crisp, clean lines defined most of the collection, as in the simple bag above. Interest came from vibrant colors, like in the full-skirted dress at left, or in fabric details, like the gathered back of the printed dress at right.

Though unfailingly ladylike, the clothes were styled with a casual, "oh, this old thing?" insouciance that made even the most dressed-up looks feel more youthful and of-the-moment than many of Mr. de la Renta's past collections. We could easily see all but the boucle suits (which were a tad dowdy) being worn by women of a certain age and their daughters or granddaughters, and the accessories — especially the generously proportioned handbags and patterned t-strap platforms — are sure to be a hit with the under-40 crowd, a demographic that Mr. de la Renta seems to be courting more aggressively these days.

"Women and making women beautiful," said Mr. de la Renta of his inspiration, once he had finished accepting congratulatory post-show kisses. LAUREN DAVID PEDEN (FASHION WIRE DAILY)

Beauty

Refresh Yourself

Spraying something directly in one's face goes against every human instinct.

Smashbox's CALL TIME SKIN AND MAKE-UP REFRESHER SPRAY ($21, Sephora) thus requires conquering one's natural impulses and becoming a better person. Actually, it just means your face is blasted with lightly scented fluid. You can spray it on pre- or post-make-up, and while its toner properties (the main ingredient is witch hazel) may perk you up, you won't look much different. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Beauty

Lash On and On

Synchronized swimmers and Esther Williams, take note: Lorac's new WATERPROOF LASHES mascara

($19, Sephora) certainly lives up to its moniker. After a full day of wear, the stuff was hard to get off even with make-up remover. (Warning: This tester forgot to scrub the stuff off one night and woke to alarmingly smeary, itchy clown eyes in the a.m.) The determined-not-to-leave-your-peepers substance lifted and separated the lashes nicely without too much spikiness. It's definitely going in our evening bags during this sob-fest wedding season. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

KICKBALL | For many residents of ADAMS MORGAN, the influx of weeknight kickball players can be irksome, especially as they take to any number of local watering holes for sometimes noisy postgame fun and frolic.

As some areas of the city have heated battles over gentrification, it seems, others have their own skirmishes over different forms of perceived intrusion.

Reacting to our post on kickball from Tuesday, commenter LONNIE BRUNER of Adams Morgan asked: "Is it an official kickball rule that you all have to live in ARLINGTON but play behind my apartment in D.C.?"

Which got this response on Wednesday from another commenter, ALENA: "Yes, except for those of us who live in BETHESDA or FAIRFAX. We play in the Lonnie Bruner's Apartment Division of WAKA [the World Adult Kickball Association]."

MICHAEL GRASS (EXPRESS)

HOUSING | There are a lot of renters in the D.C. area. And looking for housing online can seem like the Wild Wild West. Blogger THE DCUNIVERSE.BLOGSPOT.COM posted a detailed "Housing Wanted" ad, but landlord hawks have been sending him listings for units out of his specified rental range, among other transgressions.

Now, the blogger says, it's pay-back time: "Up until now, I've just deleted these e-mails. But from now on, I'm going to respond and set up a time to view the apartment. Of course, I have no intention of showing up. And if that means you have to head back home during your lunch hour, only to be greeted by a no-show ... well, that's too bad."

It's never pretty when renters go on the offensive. M.G.

I'm going to see you in Vegas in July. Before I buy tickets ... is there a splash zone? Should I bring my poncho?

There's always a splash zone. I just don't know where it will be.

So you're basically like a popular Gilbert Gottfried, right?

No, for God's sake. I love Gilbert but we're in two different universes.

What are some of your thoughts about the war in Iraq?

It makes my head explode.

So, How long before we invade Iran?

It just depends on if there's something real that we have to avoid dealing with, like gay marriage.

When is Lewis Black going to have his own show (a la Stephen Colbert) on Comedy Central?

Comedy Central hasn't a clue what to do with me, so who knows. I will probably end up on the Food Network.

What's your take on the recent string of alligator attacks in Florida and do you see any correlation between them and the low public opinion of Congress?

That's funny. An alligator isn't stupid, it's just eating the wrong people.

Is it bad that I'm a conservative Republican and love your act? Should I switch political parties?

You should drop both parties and no, it's not bad.

Now that we Canadians have our own terrorists, do you think we'll be as "free" as you Americans?

Good luck. At least you can find them.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may have to share the stage with someone who doesn't do things in a way that meshes with your methods. Motives, too, are different.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You can afford to be a little more bold and courageous throughout the day. Why let the same old restrictions hold you back?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) No one will read you like a book. You're going to want to remain aloof for whatever reason, thinking yourself safer that way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Others are likely to gravitate toward you all day long. Be sure you know how to channel such attention, or it may prove a burden.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't be so free with your opinions that people stop caring what you think. If you speak, you want it to have an impact.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Don't get so self-indulgent and esoteric that others don't know what you're going on about. Communication is key.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You can enjoy the sights and sounds around you without feeling like you have to be anywhere else. Passivity can be productive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Dole out what others need in equal measure to that which they merely want. You're in a position to do what is required in both fashions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Now is the time for you to stress those things that provide personal strength and enjoyment. Inner peace is certainly within reach.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Someone is trying to tell you something that is personal, but you've not been receptive. Try lending a more sympathetic ear.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take care you aren't so busy feeling that you forget to think. A combination of heart and mind is essential to your success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) What is it that has you fearing things you were used to in the recent past? Nothing has changed that dramatically; get over it.

Thanks to Blue Line Riders

I AM WRITING TO SHOW my gratitude to the commuters on the first car, middle section of the Blue Line to Franconia-Springfield that was at Smithsonian around 7:55 a.m. on June 6. I was having severe medical problems that continued to get worse as the commute went on. I ultimately ended up getting off the train as soon as I could.

I want to thank the passengers for showing concern as we were stuck in a tunnel due to a sick passenger on the Orange Line train ahead of us. Without their help and thoughtfulness I know I would have ended up in worse condition than I was.

* NAME: Bill Buford GIG: Author/
editor-turned-foodie/chroniclist

IT STARTED INNOCENTLY enough. In a story meeting at "The New Yorker," Bill Buford, the magazine's fiction editor at the time, pitched a profile of celebrity chef Mario Batali, to be written by Jay MacInerney. Editor David Remnick said the story should be written by Buford himself. Buford started as a grunt in the kitchen at Babbo, but the assignment snowballed into a joyously exploratory mid-life crisis that took him from New York to Tuscany, from wordsmith to cook and back again. Thursday at Politics & Prose, Buford reads from and signs "Heat: An Amateur's Adventures as Kitchen Slave, Line Cook, Pasta-Maker, and Apprentice to a Dante-Quoting Butcher in Tuscany."

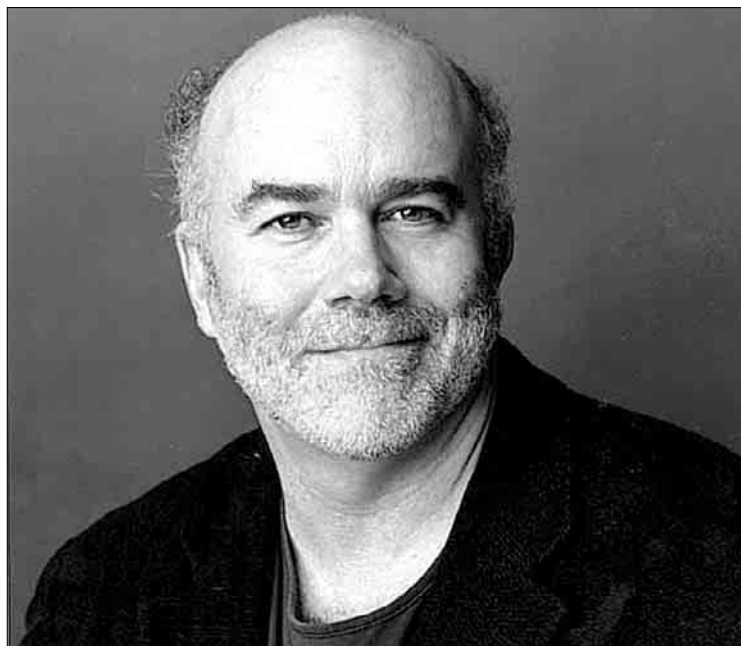

Your previous book, "Among the Thugs," was about soccer hooligans.

Does a thread of subcultural investigation tie your work together?

It wasn't intended, but I think there's a little bit of the participatory anthropologist at work in both — somebody who's joining a closed society that has its own rules and that is almost defined by the way it's at odds with the rest of the world.

How far apart does the kitchen stand from everyday life?

It doesn't socialize in the way [everyone else does]. It doesn't know the weather.... They don't mix with the rest of the world. They are in this closed little box — like some behavioral experiment.

COURTESY KNOPE

TASTE THIS: Buford set out to profile a chef and ended up on a midlife journey.

What was the weather like?

The weather inside is always hot and rather humid, you just never see the horizon.

And yet the kitchen also represents to you a rootedness, knowing where your next meal's coming from.

Our culture is having a unique moment where there have never been so many people who don't know how to make food as there are now, especially in America — especially in New York.

It's a very curious moment of comprehensive ignorance.

New Yorkers tend to use their kitchens for storage, don't they?

They don't usually use them for cooking, that's true. New York is a restaurant city, and one of the virtues of a restaurant city is that you can be fed at any level, at any price, anywhere, all the time.

"[Those in the kitchen] are in this closed little box — like some behavioral experiment."

Is it true that you're next going to track the rise of Caterina de Medici and follow the influence of Italian cooking on French food?

I'm going to write a memoir about Los Angeles and my father first. Then I'm almost certain to follow Caterina de Medici over the Alps and into France. GLENN DIXON

A Heinous Immortality

'Assassins' peeks into the minds of political killers — with music

STAGE | What do you get when you put the likes of Lee Harvey Oswald, John Wilkes Booth and John Hinckley on a stage together?

Songs about dreams and unrequited love, naturally. At least those are among the subjects of the songs in Stephen Sondheim's chilling-yet-comedic musical "Assassins," an examination of America's successful and would-be makers of dead presidents.

The musical, which debuted in 1990 but didn't reach Broadway until 2004, began a run at Signature Theatre last week. Returning to the Sondheim well once again, Signature has packed its "Assassins" cast with familiar faces and Helen Hayes Award-winners — many of them both.

The musical, according to director Joe Calarco, attempts to provide a window into the minds of its infamous characters and show similarities between them and the average, non-head-of-state-murdering folk. Booth (Will Gartshore) is not so much a madman as a poorly reviewed actor who wants to avenge the South. Hinckley (Matt Conner) pines for an unattainable love.

This is not to say these assassins are romanticized. The musical delves into the subject's dark core, linking together a band of misfits who yearn for a violent kind of self-expression.

As the musical asserts, "Everybody's got a right to be happy." ERIN TROMPETER

An Altered State

Ex-Phish singer on faith, the end of his band and Tom Petty

MUSIC | Burlington, Vermont's Phish was a massive band with a string of gold albums and fans known for following the rock group's tours around the country. After fronting the progressive, improvisational quartet for more than 20 years, Trey Anastasio walked away in '04.

Anastasio's first post-Phish solo record, "Shine," shows him adeptly exploring the joys of straightforward, jam-free pop-rock. Express got the guitar hero on the phone earlier this week.

What did Phish argue about?

We didn't argue much until the last five years. It did turn into a lot of yelling and it was mostly about the complexities of running a big corporation of sorts. Personnel issues — you have zillions of people working for you, you don't even know what they do. Like, "What do you do?" "I don't know, I guess get a salary."

We did argue at the end and it was sad. We got along pretty well and still do.

Did Phish ever stop practicing?

Yeah. The last few years it was hard to practice because we'd been playing for over 20 years and the dynamic, based on the hugeness of the organization, had gotten out of control. Our social scene had gotten giant. It was hard for us to escape it and get time together.

So we weren't practicing much at the end. I still think there were some good shows, though.

Did you get turned off by the scene in the parking lot before shows?

Yes, in the sense the lot scene was backstage. It corresponded — I knew 'cause I have friends that were out there. What started off as a cool healthy party changed and I was part of it. I started feeling like I was advertising negativity.

"I kept listening to people other than my heart. It's a dangerous thing to do."

In recent interviews you've touched on your faith. Could you go into that a little more?

Well, I was losing it, without really knowing I had it. I started to get depressed and disconnected from people. That led to a lot of the changes in the last couple years. At that point, you start searching for spirituality. Can't say I'm going to church or anything, but I'm looking for simplicity and spirituality.

I kept listening to people other than my heart and it's a dangerous thing to do, 'cause you can get pulled like taffy. Maybe the spirituality is trying to listen to your inner voice.

How many times a day do you get recognized on the street?

Probably six or seven times. People are usually pretty nice. It's not a big deal.

For more of this conversation, visit readexpress.com this afternoon.

Are you a pothead?

No [laughs]. I'm a gym-head at this point. I couldn't get up and bring my kids to school if I was a pothead. Plus, they'd know. They're too old

TREY ON PHISH'S LAST DAYS: "2,500 people on the guest list. It got so deeply unhealthy that somebody was going to die. It was just completely out of control."

now; they'd bust me.

Is it important to you open for Tom Petty?

Very important — he was on a songwriting tear for about 10 years. His songs kept getting simpler and more powerful. My plan is to study him. I'm interested in impact with less.

"Shine," your first post-Phish solo record, is a move toward simplicity.

Yeah. I'm really interested in playing music where it's all about emotion and honesty. That's the only thing that matters.

As you get older, all you want to convey is the feeling inside you. That's what I was saying about all the other voices and the giant guest-list and the organization — it's all voices other than your own and it takes you away from making that heart connection with the person listening, which is the only thing that's important, 'cause it saves people if you can do it.

Dance-rockers !!! want gloomy hipsters to rhythm up now

MUSIC | Music that you can dance to — that, and that alone, is enough for !!!.

The eight-piece band with the exclamation marks for a name — pronounced any way you want as long as it's three identical one-syllable sounds — came out of the Northern California indie and punk scenes. But by 1995 these musicians were fed up with all the po-faced statues that populated its audience, so the band decided to teach the indie kids how to dance.

!!! applied punk's DIY mentality to funk and disco to create audience-engaging white-boy boogie that's more Liquid Liquid than Thin Lizzy.

With sister bands LCD Soundsystem and Out Hud, !!! has helped re-energize dance-rock, recalling the days of early '80s New York when No Wavers and hip-hoppers danced to Kraftwerk, ESG, James Brown and Can. !!!'s last CD, "Louden Up Now," came out in 2004, but the group is working on a follow-up disc set to hit this fall. And tonight's show is merely a warm-up for !!! before it hops over to Europe to open for the Red Hot Chili Peppers.

Though the members of opening act Lansing-Dreiden remain willfully obscure, the fellas who will show up as L-D II — a five-man version of the artist collective — should be able to handle the neo-new wave sounds that make up "The Dividing Island," the group's recently released second CD. CHRISTOPHER PORTER

Eight-Legged Freaks

The Hirshhorn hosts a horror 'Pest Fest' for movie-monster fans

FILM | When it comes to keeping its garde up, the Hirshhorn usually does what it avants. But once the sun turns the Mall into the nation's tourist-broiler, the 'horn puts its hair up, throws a cool cloth across its neck and invites the crowds in for a little "Summer Camp."

This year, the B-movie mini-festival goes in for creature features of the insectoid variety. Four out of the next five Thursdays ("Pest Fest" skips June 22), local film scholar David Wilt introduces sci-fi/horror flicks made between the mid-'50s and the early '60s. This was the H-bomb era, a time when the fear of science-gone-awry led writers to envision the puniest nuisances as looming mutants that couldn't just be slapped away.

Even though 1958's domestic mystery/melodrama "The Fly" (screening June 8) and 1954's big-budget action picture "Them!" (June 15) were very different sorts of films, MOTHRA ROCKS: The giant Japanese moth has the coolest theme song in history.

they both benefited from the studios' insistence that the stars shine brighter than the makeup, the modelwork or, in the case of the latter picture, the flamethrowers used to incinerate the giant ants.

"The earlier movies ... tend to be more character-driven. They were made by big studios, they have familiar people in them and they don't rely on the special effects," Wilt said. "Now you can see a film like 'Van Helsing,' and I don't even remember who was in it."

Still, things will get cheesy with the June 29 showing of "Mothra," an English-dubbed Toho production featuring "a nice monster" that is your screen door's (or your woolen sweater's) worst nightmare. When the series wraps July 6 with "Beginning of the End," today's CGI addicts should be prepared for what Wilt calls "the lowest extreme of special effects."

"They just took regular grasshoppers and photographed them and sprinkled them on pictures or blew them up large." GLENN DIXON

SWEET MUSIC: Kitchell doesn't coin anything in her agreeable pop, but she's influenced by sterling singer-songwriters such as Joni Mitchell and Al Green.

Girl With The Pearls

Sonya Kitchell writes coffeehouse pop inspired by the greats

MUSIC | Right now, Sonya Kitchell is that "it" teenager, whose full-length debut, "Words Came Back to Me," is racking up rave reviews.

The disc hit the streets two months ago, but more importantly, it was placed in kiosks at various Starbucks shops. So it's difficult to not look at some of the hoopla behind "Words Came Back to Me" as just savvy marketing.

Thing is, though, Kitchell does deliver an agreeable batch of coffeehouse pop. At times, she wears influences such as Joni Mitchell, Carole King and Al Green too readily on her sleeve. To be sure, there isn't a note, sigh or theme that hasn't been covered over and over, but this 17-year-old is keen enough to emulate the best songwriters. And in her singing, Kitchell excels at conveying both wide-eyed optimism and world weariness.

One of her songs that best captures that balancing act doesn't appear on "Words Came Back to Me."

During the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the U.S., she was attending the Hilltown Cooperative Charter School in Haydenville, Mass. Her bucolic surrounding was far removed from the dread of New York, Washington, D.C., or Boston, where two of the suicide planes took off.

"I just remember being really struck by how much was going on outside of where I was," Kitchell said. "My life was for the most part normal. But outside my immediate world, there was this huge disaster going on." Kitchell wanted to offer something positive to the situation. She wrote "If I Cried." "That was the only consolation that I felt that I could give," she said.

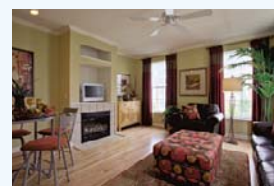

Perhaps this Saturday at the Birchmere, she'll perform that comforting song. A self-described voracious writer, Kitchell said she's ready to record her second album, and that her songcraft is progressing beyond her influences.

"Working with my band is a ... part of my progression. We've gotten really tight," she said. "[My] next album will probably have a more unified sound." JOHN MURPH

A FINE DISTRACTION: Sabrina LeBeauf and Amir Arison beat the retreat.

Pop Goes The Bard

'Love's Labour Lost' swings into India in the spiritual Sixties

STAGE | Shakespeare Theatre Company Artistic Director Michael Kahn looked to the east for his staging of a swinging, multi-culti, music-filled version of "Love's Labour Lost." Kahn discussed his inspirations in updating the romantic comedy.

How did you choose the milieu?

There was a lot of speculation about the play when it was written, that it was about a group of fashionable young men around the Earl of Southampton's court. It was a satire on these academic and spiritual retreats. I looked for a modern parallel to that. Certainly one of the most pertinent parallels was during the '60s, everyone went over to India to study with a maharishi. There are these three young men who visit with the King of Navarre, so I made them a successful rock group. It's sort of like a little ashram.

Is the folly of isolation a main theme?

The play also deals with how strong women are, how powerful they are. The women arrive and basically conquer the boys' decision to go on a retreat. So that was something about the '60s too, as women discovered their power and independence, and men were discovering their softer sides.

How did you cast it?

I knew that there were a lot of interesting Indian-American actors in New York, so I thought if I could find some really good actors of Indian descent, that could work. What I didn't know is if the men I hired to be in the band could play.

Do they play music onstage?

Oh they do, they do. And then we also have Indian instruments, and it turned out that all the Indian-American actors were willing to play certain instruments, so we have quite a lot of music in the show.

It seems kind of harmless now, but it was really exotic then. And stars are still doing the equivalent.

Yes, and you can make fun of it now. I didn't want to show Madonna going to kabbalah classes.

Did you cut much?

I did very little cutting, just a couple of things that finally were just too obscure. It's a play about language, too, so I decided to do it in the language. It's nice to see 450-year-old lines get a laugh.

A Prodigal Returns

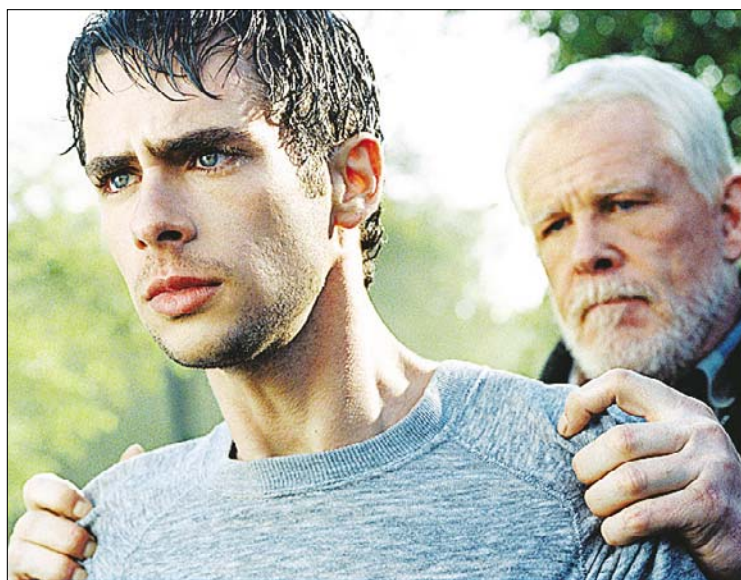

Troubled actor Nick Nolte is back and more visible than ever

HARD AT WORK | Nick Nolte is happy to report that he is recuperating nicely from knee replacement surgery. The actor is pleased with his speedy recovery because he has three new films to promote.

In the animated "Over the Hedge," Nolte provides the voice of a grizzly bear named Vincent. In "Peaceful Warrior," he stars as a mysterious spiritual guide to a promising but unfocused college gymnast. In "Love Stories of Paris," he plays an American celebrity living in Paris and is one of the few actors in the film who speaks English.

Nolte, whose personal foibles — most memorably a 2002 DUI arrest — have at times overshadowed his spectacular work, appears to be on a career upswing. Concentrating his recent efforts on independent projects like "The Good Thief," "Northfork" and "Hotel Rwanda," the burly actor has managed to remind moviegoers of his equally sizable talent and versatility.

GUIDANCE: Nolte as Socrates with Scott Mechlowicz in "The Peaceful Warrior."

"I've exorcised some demons," he said. "They're gone."

He is particularly proud of "Peaceful Warrior," the Victor Salva-directed drama based on the popular Dan Millman novel, "Way of the Peaceful Warrior." Millman is a college coach, a former world-class gymnast and a noted author of self-help books infused with Eastern philosophy and martial arts technique.

Millman's premise is to have a peaceful heart and a warrior spirit through the development of inner strength and wisdom.

Back when "Peaceful Warrior" first became an international best seller, producers approached Nolte about playing the part of Dan, the college gymnast who embarks on a spiritual journey. Dan is guided by Socrates, a mysterious philosophizing service-station attendant who advises him on new ways of looking at himself and the world.

That earlier project never took flight but 25 years later, the middle-aged actor was suited to play the elder guide to the gifted but spiritually empty pupil (Scott Mechlowicz of "Neverland" and "Mean Creek").

Nolte says that while the book was published 25 years ago, its message of finding inner peace remains relevant. "It's another way to look at life rather than [feeling like] I've got to get out there and become somebody," he says. "You already are somebody. You may never find that material fulfillment, but it may exist inside. Love definitely exists inside." ANGELA DAWSON (VNU ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

At AFI

The happy accident of the Robert Altman and Sean Connery appreciations running more-or-less consecutively has given us a dream weekend. Altman's ecstatic Western, "McCabe & Mrs. Miller" (Fri.-Sun.) features Warren Beatty and Julie Christie in a parable of empire and escape that unfolds like an opium dream. His loose-limbed update of Raymond Chandler's "The Long Goodbye" situates Philip Marlowe in a grungy '70s Los Angeles of dingbat architecture and rueful loneliness. Meanwhile, John Boorman either lost or found his ever-lovin' mind with the nutso futuristic fantasy "Zardoz" (Sat. & Sun.).

Avant-Garde Grooves

Latin jazz pianist Eddie Palmieri throws everything in the mix

MUSIC | For Eddie Palmieri, Latin jazz — commonly known for its improvisational bristle and gripping syncopation — is becoming more “jazz-Latin,” in which the polyrhythmic fire takes backseat to the near-telepathic interplay associated with modern bop.

“We always played music that people could dance to,” said Palmieri, “with a rhythm section consisting of congas, timbales and bongos. Now, a lot of newer artists could care less if the music is danceable.”

Ironically, Palmieri himself was once considered a Latin-jazz renegade. As piano virtuoso who cites Thelonious Monk and McCoy Tyner as some of his most significant influences, his playing can sound decidedly avant-garde. Some early material saw him incorporating everything from psychedelica to sacred Caribbean music.

During New York salsa’s halcyon years of the ’70s, Palmieri released a string of progressive albums, some of which were on the influential label Fania Records. A batch of Fania LPs have recently have been re-mastered and reissued, including his classic, “Vamonos Pa’l Monte.”

While Fania Records played huge role in popularizing salsa and Latin jazz in the U.S., becoming the Motown for those idioms, Palmieri is a bit embittered. As with many other great record companies, a lot of Fania Records artists got shafted financially. “[Fania’s] business side wasn’t the best,” he said. “The label still owes me money and so far, from the reissues, there are still some unresolved issues.”

But these questionable business practices didn’t hinder Palmieri’s ascension. He continues to release fantastic discs, including last year’s “Listen Here” and 2002’s “La Perfecta II.”

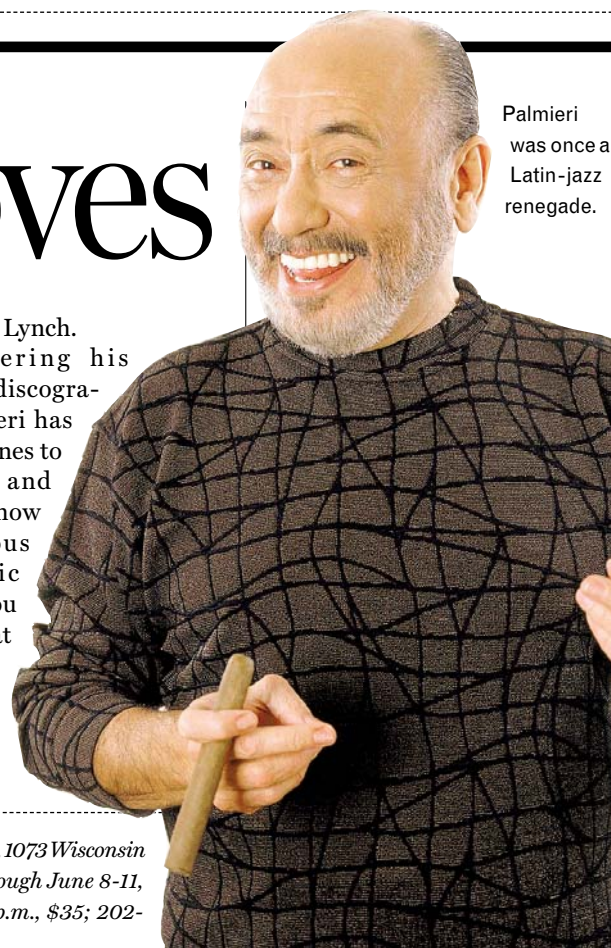

Throughout his six-day residency at Blues Alley he’ll front his sizzling ensemble, featuring exemplary players including trombonist Conrad Herwig, saxophonist Craig Handy and trumpeter Brian Lynch.

Considering his enormous discography, Palmieri has plenty of tunes to pull from, and no matter how adventurous the music may get, you can bet that those bracing grooves will be fully intact.

Everett, E or Eels — an artist by any other name would sound as depressing.

The Slippery Charm of Eels

Mark Oliver Everett draws on bad times to make good music

MUSIC | It’s a tough time to be a musical melancholiac, what with chirpy little bluebirds like Daniel Powter gussying up the airwaves. So you had a bad day? Not as bad as Mark Oliver Everett, who goes by the single letter E and records under the name Eels.

Though E made his name (so to speak) with the 1996 hit album, “Beautiful Freak,” his downer rep was cemented by the follow-up, “Electro-Shock Blues.” An album about the grim deaths of one’s parents (cancer) and sister (suicide) will do that.

Critics, of course, love a downer. As do people who suffer through deaths and breakups and plain ol’ bad days. That covers just about everyone in the world — even D. Powter. So last year Eels released a 33-song double CD, “Blinking Lights and Other Revelations,” to try to bum out everyone.

Evidently it failed, as the record included songs that might be mistaken for optimistic, or even funny. (“I’m Going to Stop Pretending That I Didn’t Break Your Heart” — best song title ever?) Perhaps that could be blamed on sunny, optimistic guests like Tom Waits and Peter Dinklage. Okay, maybe not. It must be the strings, brass and bells that adorn E’s pop hooks. Because how could violins sound sad?

Okay, okay, maybe E took Powter’s advice. ‘Cause he had a bad day, he’s taking one down, he sings a sad song just to turn it around. And then he kicks the living snot out of that irritating Powter WUSS. BOB MASSEY

Getting Away From It All

➔ IN AN EERIE, DEADPAN foreshadowing of the kind of world in which many of us would soon be living, Todd Haynes' "Safe" extrapolates the ennui of housewifery to a near-fatal extreme. The 1995 film stars Julianne Moore as Carol White, a nice, normal woman who begins to exhibit symptoms of extreme sensitivity, unaccountable allergies and crippling fatigue. There's nothing "wrong" with Carol, but there's nothing much right with her dull, blameless life, either. Eventually she removes herself from her husband, kids and house — her toxins — and lives out her days at a shady (in both senses) retreat. A cure or a desertion? There aren't many clues in this unagitated film, just evocative moments and details that live in your head long after the lights go up. Library of Congress, Pickford Theater, 101 E. Independence Ave. SE; Fri., 7 p.m., free; 202-707-5677.

AFRICAN ELITES IN

India

A Lecture and Book Signing
Saturday, June 10, at 2 p.m.

Hear the story of sub-Saharan Africans who gained positions of power and status on the continent of India in the 15th to 20th centuries. Known as Habshis, the Arabic word for Abyssinian or Ethiopian, the little-known group of elite merchants, soldiers, nobles, statesmen and rulers worked their way up from slaves, eunuchs, or concubines.

Kenneth Robbins, renowned South Asian scholar & author and John McLeod, chair of the history department at The University of Louisville and a specialist in South Asian history, will discuss their new book African Elites in India: Habshi Amarat. A book signing will follow.

Black's Bar and Kitchen to Reopen for Start of Summer

For those who were missing Black's Bar and Kitchen in Bethesda, the restaurant's $2.5 million renovation is wrapping up and the doors will be re-opened to the public on June 19. For a while, the place will be closed on Tuesdays, but open for dinner the rest of the week. Lunch and brunch service will start up next month. The bar and patio area are first come, first served. MICHAEL GRASS (EXPRESS)

→ 27750 Woodmont Ave., Bethesda; 301-652-5525 (Bethesda)

PRE-THEATER DINING

Drinks Inspired by 'Little Women' at the Roof Terrace

If you're planning on bringing any pint-sized loved ones to any of the Kennedy Center's performances of "Little Women," the Roof Terrace

Restaurant and Bar will be serving miniature cocktails (non-alcoholic, of course) named for characters from the play. While the mocktails will be available during intermission, they'll also be served up at the rooftop restaurant as a pre-theater option, along with the rest of Chef Jose Urrutia's menu. M.G.

→ 2700 F St. NW; 202-416-8555. (Foggy Bottom-GWU)

WHAT'S EATING YOU?

Ask Tom

Where was the last restaurant you took a romantic date?

(That's kind of personal, isn't it?) I'll answer anyway: Cafe 15 in the Sofitel. I knew that no one there would recognize me, plus the setting is quite luxe without being stuffy.

→ 806 15th St. NW; 202-730-8800 (McPherson Square)

What are your favorite restaurants in the area with late hours, or which are open 24 hours?

Amsterdam Falafelshop is open until 4 a.m. on the weekends. For something more substantial, try Bistro Francais, Sette Osteria, Eat First or Busboys and Poets — all open until at least 2 a.m. (mostly on weekends).

→ Amsterdam Falafelshop, 2425 18th St. NW; 202-234-1969. (Woodley Park-Zoo/Adams Morgan)

→ Bistro Francais, 3124-28 M St. NW;

SUSAN BIDDLE/TP

HANGING OUT INTO THE WEE HOURS: Busboys & Poets on 14th Street is one of Washington's few restaurants that stay open into the wee hours of the night.

202-338-3830.

→ Sette Osteria, 1666 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-483-3070. (Dupont Circle)

→ Eat First, 609 H St. NW; 202-289-1703. (Gallery Place-Chinatown)

→ Busboys and Poets, 2021 14th St. NW; 202-387-7638. (U St.-Cardozo)

What's the best Thai restaurant in the area?

Right now? My vote would go to the colorful Bangkok 54 in Arlington, which now employs a few cooks from the nearby Thai Square, which was my previous first choice for Thai food.

→ 2919 Columbia Pike, Arlington; 703-521-4070.

JAE D. HONG

Bill Maher vs. the Powers That Be

➔ THE COMIC AND STAR of the HBO talk show "Real Time With Bill Maher" has made a career of being a political comedian who isn't afraid to say what he's thinking no matter how outrageous. And that's all well and good in a free society, but boy, is his shtick getting old. At least here in Washington, he'll have the advantage of local relevance, picking on the politicians who inhabit this city without actually caring about what happens in it. Fans of his outside-the-box sarcasm accept the arrogance as the price of the punchlines. Maher will perform at DAR Constitution Hall on Saturday.
